When I went to the Democratic National Convention, as a poor black woman from the ghetto of Chicago, I thought, at that time, and it was, the greatest thing that ever happened in my life. When I became elected as State Representative from the Twenty-Sixth District, having ran twelve years, five times, I thought, this too was the greatest thing that ever happened in my life. But, today, I stand for you acting as Speaker, by far exceeds anything that has ever happened in my life. I'm grateful. Thank you. The House will now be adjourned. Thank you."
