Shea: "Ladies and Gentlemen, I know you, I suppose, are wondering what we're doing here today, although this is not a regular session of the House of Representative, it is what is known as a perfunctory session. My name is Gerald Shea. I'm the Majority Leader of the House. At the request of Speaker Redmond, I am temporary speaker today. What we are attempting to do is to read in committee reports and introduce bills, things that are normally what you might call perfunctory, so that we can do it without taking up the time of the entire house, and do it in times when we are normally not in session, like now when we're on a Easter break, so that we may do your business, even though the full House is not here. I'm sorry that the House isn't in Session today, but I do hope you enjoy your visit to the Capitol. House Bills, First Reading."
