Sec. 201.1. Department of Human Services; class schedules.

(a) The General Assembly recognizes the recent growth of synthetic drugs and the dangers they create. The General Assembly further recognizes that the chemical structure of synthetic drugs can be easily manipulated to avoid containing newly controlled substances. It is the intent of this amendatory Act of the 99th General Assembly to create a process by which synthetic drugs and their analogs may be scheduled as controlled substances based upon their underlying chemical structure in addition to their specific chemical configuration.

(b) The Department, by rule, may identify certain classes of synthetic drugs and schedule them according to the schedule of the controlled substance or substances they encompass.

(c) To identify new chemical formulas and structural classes of synthetic drugs and their analogs, the Department may consult with the Department of State Police Division of Forensic Services, the United States Department of Justice Drug Enforcement Administration, the United States Office of National Drug Control Policy, the State Board of Pharmacy, the Office of the Attorney General, or with any other agency or group that may have pertinent information regarding synthetic drugs, their chemical structure, effects, or potential for abuse.

(d) In making the determination of whether to schedule a class of synthetic drugs, the Department shall consider:

(1) the structural similarity between the chemical configuration of synthetic drugs and their analogs and their ability to be classified based upon their shared structure;

(2) the degree of danger or probable danger of the chemical compounds that the class would encompass, as set forth in subsection (a) of Section 201 of this Act;

(3) the substantial similarity between the synthetic drugs encompassed by the proposed class and the controlled substance or substances they mimic by comparing any or all of the following:

(A) their chemical structure;

(B) their stimulant, depressant, or hallucinogenic effect on the central nervous system;

(C) the similarity of their effects on particular receptors;

(D) the degree to which the proposed class of substances mimics the pharmacological, physiological, or psychological effect of a controlled substance; or

(E) the ability of manufacturers to circumvent statutory criteria by merely manipulating the chemical structure in endless variations with the pharmacological effect remaining substantially unchanged;

(4) the extent to which the substances at issue have a demonstrated bona fide use;

(5) the extent to which the substances at issue are implicitly intended for human consumption; and

(6) any misleading importation, manufacture, distribution, labeling, or advertising of products containing substances that would be included within the proposed class.

(e) If any synthetic drug or class of synthetic drug is scheduled, rescheduled, or deleted as a controlled substance under federal law and notice of the scheduling, rescheduling, or deletion is given to the Department, the Department shall follow the procedure set forth in subsection (d) of Section 201 of this Act.
